Extensive Preparations for the Funeral at St Louis

Ex-Confederates Will Unite to Honor the Union General

CEREMONIES IN NEW YORK

New York February 19 New York is taxing every possible tribute of respect to the memory of General Sherman who at last years have been spent as one of its citizens The day of the funeral opened bright and clear Its gilt on thousands of flags and buntings at half mast from public and private buildings alike The courts remained closed no public business that was not compelled by law was transacted the exchanges closed at noon general business was brought almost to a standstill and all who could do so ceased their daily occupations to do honor to the dead soldier

EARLY STREET SCENES

At an early hour the people began to assemble on West Seventy first street opposite the late residence of General Sherman From almost every house along the street the American flag floated the greater number being in deep mourning There were few visitors in the early hours of the morning Only the most private friends and a few old soldiers were admitted and the latter were obliged to show certificates that they had served in the army

A SAD HOME COMING

Rev Thomas Ewing Sherman the son whose arrival has been so anxiously awaited reached the house at 1 30 this morning He was welcomed home not by a beloved father but by his brother P T Sherman and his sisters Mrs Tecumseh and Miss Rachael Sherman Both did not go then to view his fathers remains but after a short sad talk with his brother and sisters retired for the night to pass the hours till morning in restless sleep

THE LAST LOOK

This morning at 7 o clock just before taking an early breakfast with the family the undertaker entered the room in which lay the remains of his fond father Silently he looked at The Features once so familiar to him but now overspread by death s pallor

The casket remained open during the forenoon for any distinguished visitors that might arrive from the hotels At 11 30 a m none but some intimate friends and old veterans had come in to take a last look at the cold commander

FROM WEST POINT BOYS

A few minutes before 11 o clock a large floral shield was received from the West Point cadets The shield was six feet in height and four feet broad It was made of white and blue immortelles and bore the inscription William Tecumseh Sherman from his West Point boys Class of 1890 At the top of the shield was the American eagle worked in blue immortelles and at the bottom a sword and scabbard worked in the same flowers The base of the shield was made of white calla lillies

MILITIA MOVEMENTS

The first sign of the movement of the militia was about 11 30 o clock when one or two passed down the street General Viele says that Lafayette post of this city will send a large floral tribute to Ransom post at St Louis accompanied with the request that it be placed on the grave of their dead comrade Lafayette post will further do honor to their departed comrade by placing on the casket a large flag presented to the Sons of Veterans Lafayette post by the general some ten years ago P T Sherman the son of the general is a member of this post This flag will remain on the casket until it arrives in St Louis

ALL IN BLACK

At 12 25 the caisson draped in black drawn by four horses was drawn up in front of the Sherman house The horses were mounted by regulars and army officers were in charge Behind the caisson was an orderly leading the black charger which bore the military trappings of the general A black velvet covering almost hid the horse from view The sergeant in charge was Sergeant Phelan and the man whose honor it was to lead the black horse with the trappings was Private A T Webb of the Second battery

SERVICES OF PRAYER

FLAGS AND DECORATIONS

The hour at which the head of the funeral procession was to move from Seventy first street was 2 o clock but long before that time spectators began to take up their places along the route of march The decorations along the route are not as numerous or elaborate as when General Grant was buried [illegible] handsome and in great profusion Every house in the block where General Sherman lived so long is tastefully decorated with draped flags Along Fifty seventh street from Madison avenue to Fifth avenue nearly every house is draped and up to noon the work of decorating continued Fifth avenue from the plaza at Central park to the arch at Washington square presents a new and strong array of draped and half masted flags Particularly the club houses on the Seventh regiment veterans was handsomely draped

At the pall bearers left the house an army band outside near the Central park began playing a funeral march Six lieutenants under the command of Lieutenant Rodman appeared in the doorway bearing on their shoulders the casket of the general Slowly they bore their burden the awaiting funeral carriage All heads were then bared and as the casket reached from end of the street to the other This was at 2 05

THE PROCESSION MOVES

A marching order was given and the caisson moved out to a Sixth avenue The carriages in which were the family followed closely and all boarded the boat which was in waiting at the Desbrosses street ferry This was the ferry boat Baltimore which had been gotten ready early in the day and had been kept in the slip for some hours

The caisson as it passed into the ferry slipped through the guard of honor lining the slope on either side Many of those who had followed the remains in coaches from the late general s residence left their vehicles on the New York side and went on the boat as foot passengers The funeral procession reached the ferry house at 4 57 o clock There was no waiting there a few of the California pioneers of the earlier days The procession did accompany the remains out side of the city

AT THE STATION

At 5 22 o clock the ferry boat started across the river the masts carrying flags at half mast and the ferry bells tolling The outside of the boat had been painted black The trip across occupied 10 minutes The Fourth New Jersey regiment were drawn up between the ferry house and the railroad depot as a guard of honor when the boat came in and presented arms as the caisson was driven into the depot

THE FUNERAL TRAIN

The special train which takes the remains to St Louis was drawn up on the north side of the depot It consisted of eight cars all of which were draped in mourning The interior of the funeral car was entirely covered with black cloth and on the floor was a handsome carpet In the center stood a catafalque on which the casket covered with a silk flag was placed and rested By the side of the casket on a stand was placed the saddle bridle boots and other riding equipments of the dead soldier

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The undersigned beg to announce their co-partnership as agents in the Real Estate business and for the loaning of money upon improved property

We can assure to those placing property with us for sale or for rent our most careful and earnest effort on their behalf

We promise to those purchasing or renting property through us our candid advice and the benefit of knowledge gained through an intimate acquaintance with Colorado Springs Real Estate from the days when but three houses marked the site of the future city, down through the successive years to its present prosperity

We have implicit confidence in the development of our city.

We believe that in the next four years it will double its population as it has in the past four THIS MEANS THAT TWICE AS MANY PEOPLE WILL WANT PROPERTY--BUSINESS AND RESIDENTIAL--AND PROPERTY VALUES MUST FOLLOW THE INCREASE OF POPULATION

We speak of a future to which the PRESENT is steadily leading To-day real estate is strong and rising in value You can buy cheaper now than you will be able to buy six months hence, and six months hence for less than a year from this date.

Place your property with us for sale or renting, and we will give it careful attention

Call upon us, and we will show you property which will bring you ready profit, or will make you a pleasant home.

M. L. De COURSEY,
SHERWOOD ALDRICH.

From property now on hand we have selected six particular parcels, improved and unimproved, ANY ONE OF WHICH WE BELIEVE WILL BRING AN EARLY PROFIT TO A PURCHASER. They are the following:

Opportunities:

1. A corner on Spruce street in Parrish s Addition 100x190 feet, at a figure so low that we can promise a net profit of over $500 upon it within one year.
2. One of the finest pieces of business property upon Tejon street, which now produces a clear annual income of over fifteen per cent of the figure at which it is offered, and is steadily increasing in value Such properties as this are the best possible investments, for they produce large and never failing incomes.
3. Two lots on Cascade avenue in the North End Addition at a price which makes them a great bargain and assures their immediate sale. If you are in earnest, call at once, and we will show you how cheap these can be bought, and with but $300 ready cash
4. The best corner now left in the city for a fine business block—Pike's Peak and Nevada avenues. It is now partly improved and $75,000 will buy it. There is a large profit in this for a purchaser
5. Three lots upon Spruce street Parrish s Addition each 88x100 feet, upon which comfortable homes may be built These are convenient to the city, and the electric road up Spruce street is increasing their value every day. You can buy them now at $450 apiece
6. A business sorely needed in this city is a first-class up town hotel, with Turkish or Russian bath attachments Such an establishment would bring large returns The best possible location for it would be the [illegible] property upon North Tejon street running from Willamette avenue to Monument street, 400x190 feet deep Keep this in mind It can be bought for $40 000

LOANS.

We have money to loan upon improved city property We have money to loan upon good ranch property

Parrish's Addition.

We make a specialty of property in Parrish's Addition Do you know that but three years ago, lots there were put upon the market at from $50 to $[illegible] Today the prices of the same lots range from $500 to $650 Do you not think that with the progressive tendency of Colorado Springs real estate, and the viaduct at Bijou Street, giving communication with the Boulevard to Colorado City and Manitou, and the electric line now running through the property values will continue this remarkable increase?

There is now, and has been for six months, more building going on in Parrish's Addition than in any other section of this vicinity

In addition to the parcels above specified, we have for sale houses and lots in every portion of this addition, and at the latest and lowest prices We will be glad to show purchasers other bargains

We are also sole agents for the sale of lots in

The West End Addition and The Beacon Hill Addition,

These two additions lie just north of Parrish's and are beautifully located Lots will increase in value as surely and as rapidly as did those in the older Parrish's Addition The lots can now be bought at first prices, and as investments or as sites for homes they are unsurpassed

We are also sole agents for the sale of seventeen lots, being one half of Orgill's Addition, and lying just north and a trifle east of Parrish's. What we have said concerning the West End and Beacon Hill Additions applies to these as well

Last of these special properties, but far from the least comes

Calvert Heights,

Which adjoins Colorado City, the Midland Car Shops and the Glass Works and these cities Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou—have reached a total population of such magnitude that manufacturing industries must come. This section is certain to be the location for these industries, and this means that the property will be valuable

West Colorado Springs.

Colorado Washington and Lincoln avenues and their neighborhood, all the way to Colorado City, form one of the best localities in this vicinity at present, for building or investment and we are devoting special attention to them

We have property, improved and unimproved there, and shall be glad to [illegible] and sell or rent any more that may be offered Call upon us for this purpose.

Be sure that we can interest you in the [illegible] of your property, and that we shall be glad to see you at any time.

Respectfully,

De Coursey & Aldrich,

We are pleased that Pueblo should have a public building. It deserves it. But Colorado Springs deserves one too.

The Astor wedding seems to have been four times as successful as the famous Shepherd Vanderbilt wedding. At the latter there were presents to the value of half a million dollars while at the former there were two millions.

When the employees of the house have been selected solely on personal grounds, it is not surprising that they should be incompetent. But Mr Eddy has done well in calling attention to the fact that the employes appointed by the combine are grossly inefficient.

Republicans should not be in too much of a hurry to favor a resurvey of the boundary line between Indiana and Ohio, by which there would be a difference in Indiana of 5000 republican votes. The Ohio majority is not secure enough to make such a change safe. To trade Ohio for Indiana would be a poor bargain.

The exercises over the death of General Sherman and the talk there has been about him has been a stimulus to the patriotism of the country. He has had great honor but the country can well afford to honor its great men, both on account of the fact that they well deserve it, and because of the educational effect it will have on the rising generation.

The New York Sun, on account of Cleveland's letter on the silver question shows Governor Hill's record to be in favor of silver. In the speech it quotes the demand that a ratio between gold and silver be fixed by the countries of Europe and ourselves. If we wait for this we won't do anything. Ever since 1878 the government of the United States has been trying to do the same thing and it has always failed. A statement like that is a good way to dodge the whole question.

KIT CARSON FUND.

We present below a report of the moneys received and expended for the relief of suffering in Kit Carson county. As we understand it all immediate suffering has been relieved and there are still some supplies on hand. Probably there will be no need of further assistance in the way of food or coal. On consultation with the committee that disbursed the funds, Mayor Stallman and Mr F. B. Hill, it was thought that the best disposition of the balance would be to turn it over to the Colorado Springs Aid society. As the money was given for a specific purpose, the committee has not felt at liberty to do this without the donors having an opportunity to express their wishes. If any of the donors have any objections to this disposition of the funds, we trust they will make it known within the next two or three days, as the committee will endeavor to carry out the wishes of those who have subscribed the money. We understand, of course that they do not wish us to expend any more money for the relief of Kit Carson county if it is not needed. The statement of funds received at this office and expended is as follows.

A resolution has been passed by the Colorado representatives that no county should be organized that has not an assessed valuation of $3,000,000 and that no new counties are to be cut from old counties to leave them with less. Such a rule may work hardship in some cases but if it is consistently adhered to it will prove a wise one. In the early days many of our counties were so large as eastern states. In some instances a trip to the county seat was an undertaking of considerable hardship and even danger it meant a trip across the mountains on horseback, and of course in winter the trails were quite impassable. But at the present time such a condition of affairs does not exist, and while it is undoubtedly true that it would be handier, and more profitable for each village if it were a county seat, and every farmer could do his business and pay his taxes more conveniently if there was a county seat at the nearest post office, still the line must be drawn somewhere and with our present size of counties and the facilities for railway communication no great hardship can result from drawing it as the legislature has done.

Hon. Arthur P. Gorman's Long Experience in Public Life.

Senator Arthur Pue Gorman of Maryland is a popular models sometimes says a correspondent. United States senator in active service, stood so he did upon page. He began at a very young age to acquire his reputation in parliamentary law and there is probably no other senator who has had such a varied experience, or one in which he could so certainly acquire readiness in legislative devices.

SENATOR GORMAN

He was born March 11, 1839 in Howard county, Md. received only a common school education and in 1852 entered the United States senate as a page, remaining until 1856, serving a short time as senate postmaster. From the modest humble position of senate employe he went up a step to that of collector of internal revenue for the Fifth district of Maryland. It was an extraordinary promotion, indeed, for a young man of 25 years and a Democrat in a time like that but Andrew Johnson was president, and affairs were in an unstable condition. It is scarcely necessary to add that one of the first acts of President Grant in March, 1869 was to remove Collector Gorman, who soon became a director in the Chesapeake and Ohio canal company. In 1872 he became its president.

In November, 1869, he was elected to the Maryland legislature, was re-elected in 1871 and chosen speaker of the house, in which position he demonstrated that parliamentary law was his great specialty. In 1875 he was elected to the state senate and served four years. In January, 1880, he was elected United States senator, as successor to William Pinkney Whyte, and took his seat March 4, 1881. In 1886 he was re-elected to serve till March, 1893.

In the senate he is now the recognized leader of his party. His shrewd management during the long contest over the federal election bill roused the enthusiasm of his supporters all over the country. He is in the prime of life and health. As a fighter he is picturesque, but the fact that he usually wins is what interests his adherents.

When Alexandria Was Great.

At the Cercle Rhetorical the leading club of that town long ago, in speaking upon the early history of Alexandria, it was said: It was hard to realize that at one time Alexandria was the commercial center of the civilized world, as London is today. It had about the same population, some four millions of inhabitants—with about the same division into classes. There were the nobles and the untitled, the military and the civilians, the clergy and laity, the rich and poor. There was a library, similar to but larger than the British museum, and galleries like the National and Royal. There was a banking quarter similar to Lombard street, and in the middle of it was the Exchange or Stock exchange.

It could not tell you how large it was nor what accommodations it offered its business men. I have found out that it had a superb facade fronting the Mediterranean and probably visible for miles at sea. This facade consisted of a series of steps leading up to a great platform on which were at least two of great columns of highly polished red granite. These were about ten feet apart, two feet in diameter and thirty feet high. On the columns was a highly ornate superstructure embellished with [illegible] and marble statues. The front of the building was not less than 40 feet wide, and judging from analogy must have been at least 700 feet deep."

Well Provided with Names.

Explorers generally give to their discoveries which carry with them a social flavor of home and nationality. The great lake is known as the Albert Nyanza, because a subject of Queen Victoria superintended its exploration. The scenes of Yosemite valley figure in English books under the title of "Giant Wall [illegible]" and in American volumes as "Cathedral Rocks." In New Guinea and the surrounding islands the English and Germans are mixing up the nomenclature in a fashion that is at the same time comical and bewildering. The Germans have named a mountain peak in the east of New Guinea, which is one discovery years ago had borne names given to them by the English men who found them. Looking northeast through their glasses a while ago some English explorers on a New Guinea mountain saw two great mountains which they named Gladstone and Disraeli. A while after a German explorer, looking south west at the same peaks, dignified them with the names of Kant and Schopenhauer. So we have on German and British maps different names for the same mountains.

Wealthy Brazilians in Paris.

People generally visit Paris to spend money and have a good time enjoying distractions of that famous capital during a period the "American colony"—people from the United States—has borne the palm for extravagance. But a new crop of notoriety has passed [illegible] who are declared to be making [illegible] foreign goods in the Latin quarter. Its members appear at the theaters, they are said never to haggle over the price of any commodity, and feel insulted if attendesman hands them [illegible]. They are the life and support of places of amusement. But like other [illegible] are not given entree to French unofficial society. The Gaul admits few not of his own race to his home circle.

The Strange Travels of Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones of Kent, England is doing more traveling since his death than ever before. During his life he attended closely to business and rarely left his shop. He passed away at Portsmouth two years ago and was duly buried. When his sorrowing widow removed to Highgate she obtained the necessary authority and had the body exhumed and taken to Highgate cemetery. In a year she changed her residence to Canterbury and again disinterred her former partner and carried him with her. Each time she put the old coffin [illegible] and again, with the permission of the authorities, Mr. Jones is to follow her.

Freedom of Speech Guaranteed.

When a thing is said or done "sub rosa" concealment is implied, not always in a condemnable sense. But the term had its origin with an honorable ancient custom. The Romans festooned their banquet rooms with roses, and any guest who betrayed indiscreet words spoken "under the rose" committed social suicide.

THE TEST MADE.

The Koch Lymph Used in Denver for the First Time.

Seven Patients Treated by Dr. Meuer Yesterday.

Description of the Lymph and How It is Used.

Denver Times.

Well, is it over?

This was the question asked by the first patient in Colorado who received the Koch treatment for consumption. He was Edward Lynch, 27 years old and he sat on the edge of his bed in one of the rooms of the Koch hospital at 1417 Court place—Dr. A. J. Meuer's residence which has been temporarily occupied by the patients he is treating.

Dr. Meuer's residence was almost completely filled this morning by prominent medical men of Denver, who had gathered to see the famous lymph tested. Dr. C. H. Hamilton, Dr. George Crews, Dr. Levy, Dr. Richmond and Dr. Lobenger were among those who watched the experiments with interest. There was a noticeable excitement among all in the little crowd. There were two lady physicians too, who looked upon the preparations from a standpoint of cold science. They were Dr. Stockdale and Dr. Bates.

It was 10 o'clock when Dr. Meuer and Mr. Fischer of his special staff signified that they were ready and were followed to the hospital wards up stairs. Edward Lynch, when told to prepare for the treatment, showed a slight embarrassment in pulling up his underclothing before ladies, but when informed that they were just like the other members of the profession, he did not hesitate further. Dr. Meuer then brought out the vials containing the lymph and the little injectors. The latter were of the ordinary sort, small glass affairs, such as are frequently used in the injection of morphine. To the end of each was fitted a needle a little over an inch in length. The needle was hollow, and when the knob on the end of the syringe was pressed, the fluid passed down from the glass and out of the needle point.

There were seven patients who had this little needle pressed into the muscle between their shoulder blades this morning—seven consumptives who were not merely willing but extremely anxious to try the Koch lymph.

When Edward Lynch was called upon he took his place in a chair by the bedside and leaned forward. He is a bright looking young man, an Irish-American who has been a moulder. He came to Colorado six months ago, thinking to cure his consumption which first demonstrated itself a little over sixteen months since. When the needle ran into his flesh he did not even wince. He was surprised at the brevity of the operation.

"Is that all?" he asked.

"Your name will go down to fame as the first to receive the Koch lymph in Colorado," remarked one of the doctors.

"I don't care for the fame. I'd rather the consumption would go," remarked Lynch.

There was a slight, very slight, red mark where the needle had entered, but that was all. When the injection had been made the slight wound was rubbed with cotton and the patient ordered to dress. The cotton was dampened with alcohol. The needle had been inserted as far as possible and ten drops of the fluid entered the system. The exact amount is always carefully secured for there are little lines marked on the glass tube denoting the measurement. The exact place for the injection is known as the latissimus dorsi over the inner and under the surface of shoulder blade. The injections this morning were on the right side. The next injections will be on the left. Each patient to day was treated once.

While arranging the next patient, W. G. Holmes who has had consumption for three years, Dr. Meuer showed how the fluid was prepared. There were four vials. The original fluid was thick and red, of the consistency of mucilage. One part of the fluid had next been diluted with nine parts of sterilized distilled water, containing half of one per cent of carbolic acid. Bottle No. 3 was prepared by diluting one part of solution No. 2 with nine parts of the water. This was the fluid used for the first injection.

Patient Holmes did not get the entire amount of the fluid he should have received. In some manner a very little escaped. He was anxious to have it tried over.

So from patient to patient the doctors went. Some of the lungs were examined, respiration looked to and innumerable questions asked. The patients themselves were heroes and bore their honors with a conscious pride. They were all anxious for the treatment and all wanted to read the account of it in the Times.

One of the most interesting cases to day was that of John Small, the Chicago policeman. Small was a victim of the famous Haymarket riot, in which his lung was injured. He is a well built man of 37 years, with a reddish brown beard, and believes the lymph will effect a cure.

John P. Masterson, employed in the mechanical department of the Rocky Mountain News, was the third patient treated. He has made a will which he showed a Times reporter, giving his body to Dr. Meuer in case he should die. He believes however, that the doctor will not cut him up for several years yet.

Nathan Pollack was one of the patients Dr. Meuer brought here with him from New York. He is a young salesman, who has consumption in its incipient stages and who looks confidently to relief from the lymph. He received the needle without any evidences of pain.

"The experience is a stinging one for just an instant," he said, "but the feeling immediately passes away."

E. P. Vadebonceur and Andrew Madden were the last patients treated. Both are young men, the former from Denver, the latter from Providence, R. I. At the conclusion of the injections each patient was examined by the different doctors and the conditions of the body and throat noted.

"You may all walk around for three hours," Dr. Meuer said to the patients, "and may eat a good dinner then go to bed."

The treatment begins to show itself in about three hours after the inoculation, though it sometimes from four to five or six hours. The reaction is indicated, first by an increase in temperature and a desire to go to bed which should be immediately acted upon. The second symptom is headache, and nausea and [illegible] chest and pain in the back. An eruption of the skin comes next, which disappears after four or five days. The most important evidence of the lymph's reaction is cardiac excitement, which is indicated by a rapid and successive increase of pulse beats. It is upon the amount of local and general reaction that a repetition of the dose must depend.

The temperature of the patient is taken three times a day. It is in the expectoration of the patient, which is daily subjected to microscopic examination that improvement in the condition of the lungs is noted. By to-night Dr. Meuer will probably be able to tell in what cases the lymph is going to be successful and can decide whether or not to continue treatment.

Everything has been made comfortable for the patients at Dr. Meuer's house. They have been provided with neat cots and two patients are placed in one room. Dr. Meuer's instruments are of German manufacture and are of the best. They require great care in handling as delicate are they. The syringes in use are aseptic by cleaning with absolute alcohol. This alcohol is never used twice and care must be taken that after cleaning it is driven out of the syringe by evaporation. Otherwise, changes in the fluids may be produced.

To day the patients are all expectation and the doctors of Denver are awaiting results.

The fact is noticeable that of the seven patients treated this morning five showed consumption to improper sanitary surroundings. The other two cases were caused by overwork.

THE WORLD OF BOOKS.

Something About the Adams Family in Literature.

[Special correspondence.]

New York, Jan. 16.—In any other than the Adams family it might have been thought a remarkable coincidence that two brothers should have issued with a week's interval books as they. Life of Richard Henry Dana and the concluding volume of the History of the United States for the first quarter of a century of its existence as a nation. Neither of these books will attain a great popularity but each of them will become a standard, and therefore a permanent addition to our literature.

The remarkable intellectual inheritance which has possessed from father to son for four generations in the Adams family and which has been illustrated in political movements on many occasions during the last hundred years is also suggested by these two books written by two brothers who are great grandsons of the second president of the United States and grandsons of the sixth, and whose father Charles Francis Adams, was once nominated for the vice presidency, and all but received the nomination of the Liberal party in 1872 for the presidency in place of Horace Greeley.

Of the sons of Charles Francis Adams but one who is of the same name, Charles Francis, Jr., is the most generally known. Yet he was not a person of any public consequence until after he quit the closet of the student and threw aside the luxuries and delights of the litterateur and first grappled with the railway problem in Massachusetts as a commissioner, and after ward became the president of the Union Pacific railway. Charles Francis Adams Jr., in personal appearance, suggests the portraits of his grandfather and great-grandfather, who were presidents of the United States.

All of the Adams family were and are short, thickset men, with round heads, high foreheads and broad brows. John Adams was the shortest of all the presidents, and his son, John Quincy, with Martin Van Buren, was only a fraction of an inch taller than the second president. While Charles Francis Adams, Jr., was in the midst of most extensive business perplexities and cares he yet found time to write the life of that very remarkable man, Richard Henry Dana, who was an intimate friend of Charles Francis, Sr. Mr. Dana was best known to the American people of his generation as a writer of a book of extraordinary interest, "Two Years Before the Mast," which described his experiences as a sailor boy. Mr. Adams in his life of Dana tells the story of how this book came to be written. But he does a more important service than that, because he reveals the nature and genius of this peculiar, many sided and somewhat eccentric man.

Within a few days of the publication of this book the final volume of Mr. Henry Adams' history of the administrations of the first four presidents of the United States appeared. Until the publication of the first volume, Henry Adams was known only to a few public men and to his immediate circle of friends. Many persons were astonished to learn when the history was first made public that Charles Francis Adams had a son of this name. This was due probably to the fact that Henry Adams has lived the life almost of a recluse, and as he has abundant wealth he was able to gratify a fondness for historical study, the fruits of which we get in these volumes. He has lived in the winter for some years in Washington, and has had as a near neighbor Col. John Hay. An intimacy sprung up between Mr. Adams and Col. Hay, due very largely to their common literary tastes. While Mr. Adams was writing his history Col. Hay was putting the finishing touches upon the "Life of Lincoln," which he wrote in collaboration with Marshal Nicolay.

In these two sons of Charles Francis Adams are seen most strikingly developed that peculiar and apparently inconsistent nature which has distinguished the Adams family since the time of the colonies. The two presidents were both aristocrats, and yet republicans, using the word in its original meaning. In their social relations they were of aristocratic tendency, but in their political associations and instincts they were true republicans. Henry Adams seems to have inherited the aristocratic tendency alone, using that word in its true and not offensive sense. His associations are entirely with men of cultivation and intellect. On the other hand, a third son, John Quincy Adams, is a genuine democrat, both personally and politically while Charles Francis Adams seems to have combined the two dispositions, as did his ancestors.

In Massachusetts John Quincy Adams is perhaps better known to the masses even than his brother Charles Francis. But beyond that state his name is not a familiar one. He is a most delightful man—full of fun as an egotist of most an entertaining raconteur, witty, popular with the masses and has to mannerisms which suggest his consciousness of a distinguished ancestry. He has been the candidate of the Democracy for governor of Massachusetts two or three times and on one occasion was well in the canvass before he knew he was even nominated. If he could be induced to write a book it would be soon [illegible] that the masses would enjoy reading it, for he is or has been a very busy lawyer and [illegible] he is freed from professional cares. Points Regarding Theatre Building.

The practice of building a theatre on the second floor so as to utilize the first floor for stores should be avoided where possible. From the fact however, that a theatre must necessarily occupy [illegible] a central portion of the town, some means must be taken to obtain other sources of revenue besides that arising from the theatre alone, and it is only in large cities that the whole building can be made to yield a sufficient income to warrant the use of the ground floor for the theatre alone. When possible the theatre should be located on a corner lot as it is more convenient for the [illegible] entrance for putting in and taking out the scenery as well as affording escape in case of fire.

THE NEW POSTOFFICE

What Mr Robertson has to Say About the Building

Fearing that the public would be interested in a few details regarding the post office building a GAZETTE reporter interviewed yesterday Architect Mr Robertson owner of the block in which the office will be located for the next few years and asked him a few questions Mr Robertson was found at his pleasant home on North Nevada avenue and was willing to talk regarding the matter

Mr Robertson stated that the plans for the general arrangement of the office were made at Inspector Patterson's office in Denver hence he knows nothing definite about the arrangements than Mr Patterson was here to look at the building and that he proposed to arrange the lobby in a V shape if the Robertson block was selected He proposed to have a general delivery separating the lines for men and women so that ladies would not be compelled to jostle in a crowd that he proposed to have the money order and registry windows away from the stamp window and that a window at which packages could be delivered and through which the carriers can be communicated with The sorting and mailing departments of the office are to be conducted in the Evans store room Other details Mr Robertson could not remember He stated that among the improvements that he proposed to make in his building would be the putting in of a hot air furnace and the construction of a fire proof vault

Mr Robertson gave figures showing that the two rooms offered by him contain over 2500 square feet of floor room while the present quarters do not contain 2000 square feet If it is found that there is not light enough in the building as at present arranged he will cut down the small windows in the south side of the block There will not be a single point in the new quarters that will be over 25 feet from light and there will be two entrances, one on Huerfano street and one in Tejon street There will also be an entrance for the employes from Huerfano street into the sorting room In the rear of the Evans store room is a door leading onto private land which can be used if necessary An arch is to be cut between the two rooms and they are to be put in first-class shape every way for the government Although there will be more than 1000 square feet of space in the new rooms over the present quarters yet the fact remains that if the quarters were the same size the clerks could handle the crowds much better in the Robertson corner than in the present room This is owing to the fact that the office can be arranged so very much more conveniently in a corner room

Mr Robertson was asked how he came to present a bid to the government for the location of the office and replied

"Several parties urged me to put in a bid but I refused to do so until Inspector Patterson and Postmaster Everleth called upon me and requested that I do so They thought it a splendid location for an office

"Do you know whether Inspector Patterson recommended your corner?"

"He positively told me that he intended to do so and I believe he did

The reporter thanked Mr Robertson and left him fully impressed that so far as it lies in his power there will be no reason on the part of the public or the postmaster or his employes to regret that the change is to be made

Mrs Henry M Stanley in the City

Among the arrivals at the Antlers yesterday morning from the Rock Island train were Mrs H M Stanley, the wife of the celebrated explorer and her mother, Mrs Tennant They were both very tired and remained closely in their rooms, which consist of a suite of three rooms on the second floor facing the mountains About 7 o'clock last night the ladies came down to dinner and gave a GAZETTE reporter a chance of seeing them Mrs Stanley is decidedly tall, with a graceful figure and fluffy auburn hair She has a handsome gentle face, a skin like porcelain, through which the warm red of her cheeks appears to shine Her voice is low and clear and evenly modulated, and she has in every action and word the unmistakable stamp of gentility and refinement She was dressed in a loose waist of light yellow china silk figured in black and a plain skirt of black lace Her mother is an elderly woman with iron gray hair She was dressed in plain black and seemed to exercise a watchful care over her stately daughter, beside whom she seemed to be almost undersized After they had returned to their rooms the reporter's card was sent up but Mrs Stanley returned a message Mrs Stanley regrets she cannot be interviewed— Mrs Stanley and Mrs Tennant came to Colorado Springs for rest

The ladies will remain at the hotel until the arrival of Mr Stanley and Major Pond and wife which will be about March 4 It is not definitely settled as yet whether Mr Stanley will lecture here, but it is to be hoped that he will do so

The "Little Tycoon"

The most popular comic opera the "Little Tycoon" will be the attraction at the opera house Monday evening An exchange says No American opera has ever attained such success as the "Little Tycoon" which was presented at the Grand last night to an audience which tested the capacity of the house The people of this country are slow to recognize the merits of home literary and theatrical productions and it is a high compliment to the composer Mr Willard Spencer that his creation has by its intrinsic merit won its way to a high place among the standard comic operas of the present day The "Little Tycoon" is an admirable satire on the tendency to Anglo mania and to fawn upon the notions of other nations The presentation last night was admirable and the very large audience testified its approval by constant and hearty applause It is a remarkably bright and tuneful production, while the action is easy graceful and laughable There is not the slightest taint of pruriency about the dialogue, and the humor is as rippling and pure as the delicious melodies which follow in the most enchanting succession It is refreshing to hear such a pretty opera presented by a company in which all the girls are young and pretty with fresh sweet voices No tights and more elegant Japanese costuming than that in the last act has ever been seen in this city when the stage setting was less handsome and appropriate The Little Tycoon is admirable important in

SYRIAN CUSTOMS

An Interesting Exhibition to be Given in the First Presbyterian Church.

On Tuesday evening a very unique entertainment will be given in the First Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Young Ladies Missionary society of the church Syrian Life Its Habits and Customs will be portrayed A Syrian wedding and reception all the participants in native costume will be given The Moslem call to prayer will be sounded and many other Oriental customs will be fully illustrated and explained The most interesting part of all this is that the participants are native Syrians born in Damascus This includes Madame Suffy with her niece and nephew who became converts to Christianity through American mission ories in Syria These children, as well as two cousins, she wishes to educate and is in America for that purpose The nephew and niece propose returning to Syria as missionaries as soon as their education is completed

Madame Suffy's oldest son is in college and his cousin is anxious to enter as soon as possible It was for this purpose they disposed of their olive orchard on Mount Lebanon, investing most of the proceeds in art needlework These lovely specimens of oriental work will decorate the parlors of the church Their credentials have been carefully examined by competent authority and are pronounced genuine

It is hoped that the entertainment next Tuesday night will be largely attended It cannot fail to be deeply interesting and the cause it aids is one in every way worthy.

ADMIRAL PORTER'S FAVORITE PAPER.

The Veteran Sailor's Views Regarding the Press of America

The late Admiral David Dixon Porter, although he had been a sailor for more than three score of the seventy-eight years of his life and had attained the highest rank in the navy of the United States after a career distinguished by gallantry and success, desired to achieve prominence in other fields than that of conflict. When he laid aside the sword he took up the pen, and surprised the world in his latter days by turning out some very readable volumes of history and fiction, as well as a play, that was by no means a failure. His only half concealed regret seemed to be that his career had been that of a fighter instead of that of a writer. He admired newspapers and newspaper men. He was a subscriber to fourteen daily journals, and often spoke with admiration of the enterprise and fairness of the American press. "Although" as he once said "I have sometimes received personal attacks from that quarter, which attacks I have never allowed to annoy me. Without the press" he added, "we would soon lose our civilization, the world would run riot and in a few years we would all relapse into barbarism"

To a query from the writer of The Boston Globe as to his idea of a good newspaper, he replied recently "A good newspaper is the one which has the largest circulation and makes the most money, inculcates the highest code of morals, and contains the best editorials It should be conservative, and should not favor any party in support of a wrong in opposition to the convictions of the editor It should support the best men in city, state and national government irrespective of their politics, and do what it could to bring about the millennium"

Condition of the Private Soldier.

The private soldiers in the army of the United States may not know it, but the fact is that they receive better pay, better treatment and more privileges than those of similar condition in any other civilized country The "raw recruit" gets $13 a month, with food and shelter; from the moment of his enlistment. The pay is increased as he gains experience and shows himself a faithful follower of the flag In striking comparison with this state of affairs is the condition of the picturesque [illegible] French government ask in less than this had risen to $29 Now the figures have been brought down to $19 The result has been accomplished by economic and administrative reforms, although in the meantime the daily pay of the soldier has been increased three centimes, his meat rations have been augmented, and sugar and coffee have been added to his diet all of which together make an increased expense of $15 per capita annually The annual expenditure of the French government on a cavalryman is $95 58

MARIAN KENNEDY, Sec'y.

THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1891.

There will be an important special meeting of the Iron Hall at the Knights of Honor lodge room to-night.

The college foot ball club yesterday fully decided to accept the challenge of the Denver High school club and will visit Denver on Monday.

Marshal Dean yesterday sold at public auction two good cows that have been taken up and held in the city pound for some time. They brought $47 in all.

The fire bell will be tested to-morrow from the time of the starting of Sherman's funeral pageant at St. Louis at half minute intervals, seventy-one times.

The "S. S. S." despisers, composed of about twenty-five of the very young gentlemen of the city, will give their first dance this evening in Knights of Pythias hall.

There will be a special communication of Colorado Springs Lodge A. F. & A. M. this evening at 8 o'clock. Work in the second degree. All Master Masons are cordially invited to attend.

There will be a very important meeting of the Jackson Hose company this evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested as there is business of importance to come before the meeting.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Mr. H. N. Funk and Miss Alice Phillips, which occurred at the residence of Mr. Philip Nohe, No. 128 South Weber street, February 11, 1891.

The subject for discussion at the Emily Bartlett W. C. T. U. at 3 o'clock p. m. to-day, will be Dr. Bessie Cushman's reviews of General Booth's "In Darkest England." Be on time; 601 North Nevada avenue.

Reserved seats are now on sale for the "Little Tycoon" at popular prices. This is one of the largest and strongest attractions now traveling and in addition to special scenery they carry their own complete orchestra.

Last night a building committee was appointed by the Southern Methodist church in this city to take steps for the enlargement of the church, made necessary by the increase in the congregation and of the Sunday school.

Manager Rice of the Pacific express has secured quarters for the Pacific and United States companies in the room on Pike's Peak avenue now occupied by Forline's pharmacy. The change will be made about March 1.

It is stated that an attempt will be made to engage the famous Hungarian band to give concerts at the Casino at Broadmoor next summer. It would prove a very great attraction, and no doubt the citizens would be willing to subscribe to assist in the matter.

Arrangements were completed yesterday by which Thomas Gough of the Chicago bakery, will furnish supper at the ball by the Printers' union on the 25th, to be given in the new GAZETTE building. The first floor in the GAZETTE'S part of the building or job room, will be used for the dining hall. The dance will be largely patronized.

Miss Cowles, librarian of the free library and reading room, has just completed some figures regarding the use of books during 1890. There are in the library about 1,000 volumes and during the year 10,000 were taken out for use. This is a remarkable showing, averaging about eleven readings for each book. Some 1250 families took out books.

McIntyre & Meier yesterday closed the sale of lots 5 and 6 block 8, corner of Huerfano and Grant streets, Cahn's addition, 100x160 feet, the purchaser being Thos. R. Lorimer, and the consideration $3500. Mr. Lorimer has looked the ground over carefully and concluded that Cahn's addition afforded as good a chance for investment as anything he had seen.

The incorporation papers of the Colorado Improvement company were filed with the county clerk yesterday. The incorporators are Edward Fergie and C. R. Goode of Colorado, L. W. Goode and Fred D. "Imp," the new comedy drama which Patti Rosa will present at the opera house to-morrow night, is said to be the best piece of theatrical property that the little actress has ever owned and the part of Nanine Duval called "Imp" the best that she has ever portrayed. An exchange says: "Miss Rosa is of the type and follows the style of Lotta known to metropolitan audiences some few years ago. In personal appearance and physique, in vivacity and smartness, the new rival is not a whit inferior to her predecessors on the boards, and she succeeds in keeping a fairly full house in constant merriment."

Last Wednesday night Captain Guth right received a telegram from the officers at Pueblo to the effect that two men accused of highway robbery and attempted murder, were coming up from Pueblo on the D. & R. G. train riding on the blind baggage. Officers were sent to meet the train but the conductor reported that the men had jumped off at Kelker, four miles south of the city. The police at once secured a hack and went down there where they found the men and brought them back. Last night a Pueblo officer arrived and stated that they were not the parties wanted and they were released. It is thought to be respectable workmen and for of them had a ticket from Denver. Commendation of the police.

Last Friday Hiram Faulke who was in charge of the pumping station at Granite canon on the line of the Union Pacific in Wyoming was found lying murdered. C. P. Pillsbrown, a mail carrier, who had roomed with Faulke had his horse shod a short time before the body was found and was next seen in Fort Collins, Colorado, where he had gone over the country. He was traced from there to Boulder, but there the trail was lost. Notices were sent to all the police and sheriffs in the state to arrest him. Last night Sheriff Jackson arrested a young man in Colorado City, who answered some of the features of the description of the suspected murderer, and he is being held at the county jail to await further identification.
